Commercial buildings, Office/administration buildings

Brunner, a medium-sized furniture manufacturer, needed new premises for product showrooms, training facilities, conferences and its administration.

The final design has become a triangular, two storey building whose main entrance leads to a two-storey hall accompanied by a floor to ceiling display of shelving units. The hall is the core space; a prestigious room able to provide for various events. One fundamental feature of this building is its roof; a sectioned folded wooden construction that defines the building's entire interior space as well as being clearly apparent from the outside.
